Dear Sir

Before considering ~~designing~~ special sites for gypsies, the following should be addressed.

1. What defines a gypsy. The dictionary description states 'member of a travelling people speaking the Romany language.'
2. Are they required to register on a national Data Base.
3. Are their earnings checked with a view to Taxation.
4. What checks are made to ensure these people do not already own properties in the UK or abroad.
5. When they camp illegally on green belt or private property, are they enforced to repair any damage and clear any detritus. Do they reimburse the costs accrued in carrying out the legal eviction process.

It is my belief that there are no controls on the people calling themselves gypsies,

and they enjoy a carefree and uncontrolled life style, at the Taxpayers expense.

The luxury they enjoy cannot be justified when the remaining populace is subject to austerity.

Unfortunately the world has moved on from this Romantic life style and the 'Gypsy' of today requires education etc.

It is not possible to have ones 'cake and eat it' and they should be encouraged into normal mainstream society and not perpetuated.

In principal I am against the provision of special sites, until governments give serious consideration to the points raised in this letter.

Yours faithfully
