I am broadly in support of the proposed housing development sites.

But with one reservation:

Unless the transport issues connecting North and South are addressed properly, there is a risk of the town splitting into two, with Leamington Town Centre losing out to Stratford and Solihull.

I think there should be a much more comprehensive plan to make cycling the easiest and preferred method of transport ~~within~~ to connect the town together.
(see sheet 2 comment).

OBJECTIONS :

1. Lack of a formally planned and mapped cycle infrastructure.
2. Combined cycling and walking routes do not work. It is very unlikely that people will walk from the new southern housing to town, but they would probably cycle if it was quick and safe.
3. There is an opportunity to link the new housing to the rest of Leamington/Warwick with some fast and effective cycle routes, and so meet the Government's target of 10% of local journeys by cycle. And prevent a split between north and south.
