I completely object to the development plan specifically within Burton Green because

- i) The excellent local school is already at capacity (and there is limited scope to further extend), so local children (who live beyond the proposed development site, but still within the village) will have to be transported to another school (I am aware that Cota Homes think that 3 children per year are needed), therefore the development will be unsustainable.
- ii) The removal of "Green Belt" status (page 32, para 6.6) will create a free for all for anyone in the village to build within national permitted development guidance rules, rather than the current 30% green belt rule. This will create 'terracing of houses' which will create an urban environment.

iii) The proposed site (Nursery) has a very high water table (and is near the underground reservoir) and is therefore contrary to PPS25 as surface water run-off is increased.

iv) The "packing density" of 70 houses in such a small space is ridiculous for such a small rural village. Richmondshire DC in North Yorkshire (similar DC to Warwick) have an average of 16 dwellings per hectare, ^(new builds) not the 30-40 proposed.

v) The proposed development in Barton Green by Cala Homes (Kenilworth news, 10/12/13) (photo) is completely out of character for the nursery area - if the council wants these type of houses they could be placed near other developments in the area along Westwood Heath Road for example.
