I vehemently object to the building of any more houses expanding the woodloes estate. Woodloes Lane is one of the very few remaining areas where people can "WALK" into the countryside. Young children benefit from being able to walk, not go in CARS to see lots of wildlife, animals, birds etc. How many GREEN FIELDS are left on the edge of town. I was born in Warwick and have lived here all my life. We have had far more than our share of building houses. The surrounding town has been swamped. Warwick is a very historical town. I have enjoyed living here like lots of other people. We already have too many houses, and cars which the roads only just cope with, any more will be grid-locked. England is supposed to be a "GREEN and PLEASANT LAND" it is fast becoming a "BROWN and POLLUTED LAND"

Enough is Enough !!
